Nigel Dennis Kayaks (NDK)

Atlantic Kayak Tours Says: The Romany set a new standard for high end paddlers. The standard day hatch, low rear deck, forward mounted compass can now be found on many kayaks, but the Romany made this popular. There is no single thing that makes the Romany special. The Romany just does lots of things good. Hard chined giving it good stability for only 21.5 inch width. We wish it had all VCP hatches in place of the front and rear 9" round covers. The skeg in Romany reduces already limited rear storage space. Some people will find the skeg vs storage space trade off not worth it for the Romany.

NDK Says: The Romany was designed in 1993 with the following features: A low rear deck for easy rolling. A white water cockpit. This gives the kayaker excellent grip, control and allows a quick exit if needed! Three compartments, including an offset day hatch, allowing the kayaker to reach into the compartment whilst at sea. Sloping rear bulkhead behind the seat, allowing the kayak to be emptied by lifting the bow (no X rescue necessary). Polished deck recesses. Plenty of room for large feet or warm winter footwear. Exceptional manoeuvrability, with direction stability. Very fast in following seas. Large round hatches Minimum weather cocking in strong winds.
